

92% of Covid Deaths Are 'Fully Vaccinated,' Government Study Finds

Description

A bombshell new report has just been quietly published by the United Kingdom government, revealing that “fully vaccinated” people accounted for a staggering 92 percent of Covid deaths last year.

The official figures show that those classed as “fully,” “triple,” or “quadruple” vaccinated accounted for nine in ten of all COVID-19 deaths in England over the past two years.

For the entirety of 2022, the fully vaccinated accounted for 92% of Covid deaths.

The official government data was revealed in a new report from U.K.-based outlet The Exposé.

On the 21st of February 2023, a U.K. Government agency, known as the Office for National Statistics (ONS), published data on deaths by vaccination status in England up to 31st December 2022.

The report revealed that for the month of October, there were just 125 Covid deaths among unvaccinated residents.

During the same period, there were 24 deaths for those with at least the first dose and 100 who had their second dose at least six months ago.

However, there were more than 2,100 deaths among those who have their third dose or “booster” shot.

Almost 2,300 deaths were among people who were “ever vaccinated,” or had had a shot at some point.

“This isn’t an anomaly,” the report said.

“We took the figures provided by the ONS and have produced [a] chart showing COVID-19 deaths per month by vaccination status in England between 1st April 2021 and 31st December 2022, a period of 21 months.

“May 2021 saw the lowest number of COVID-19 deaths, with 205 among the vaccinated population and just 84 among the unvaccinated population.

“But fast forward a year and we find COVID-19 deaths increased by 450%, with 1,494 among the vaccinated and just 96 among the unvaccinated,” the report explains.

“Surely if the Covid-19 injections were effective we would expect to see deaths decreasing year on year, not increasing?”

“COVID-19 deaths among the unvaccinated population have become almost negligible,” the report states.

Meanwhile, “deaths among the vaccinated population have become more significant as time passes.”

“For instance, between April 1st and December 31st 2021, there were 17,150 COVID-19 deaths, 13,116 of which were among the vaccinated, and 4,034 of which were among the unvaccinated,” it explains.

“This means 76.5% of COVID-19 deaths were among the vaccinated, whilst 23.5% of deaths were among the unvaccinated.”

Ultimately, Covid deaths among the vaccinated surged to 94%, the report concludes.

The report notes “9 in every 10 COVID-19 deaths over the past 21 months” comes from the “fully vaccinated population.”

“These aren’t the kind of figures you would expect to see if the COVID-19 injections really are up to 95% effective at preventing death, are they?”
