

Anderson Cooper confronted on Mexican beach about his fake COVID reporting:
“How do you sleep at night?”

Description

WORLD : Here’s something we all ought to make a habit of: calling out the elite for their propaganda and lies. It’s probably the best thing we can do for humanity—to make sure these high-and-mighty types actually face some real heat.

So, it’s pretty satisfying to hear that CNN’s own spin master, Anderson Cooper, got a taste of this on a beach in Mexico. The incident was caught on camera by a man identified as “Dan.” Anderson found himself in the hot seat, spreading all his COVID scare stories.

The exact date of the encounter is unknown, but what’s clear is that Anderson wasn’t keen on chatting. Have you ever noticed how these elite types dodge questions like they’re dodging bullets? The moment they’re put on the spot, they bolt, just like filthy cockroaches scampering away from the light.

Let’s face it, Anderson Cooper has never been known for his truth-telling. He’s a one-man propaganda machine, as shown by his “hurricane” reporting below:

But COVID was the real “fake news” blowout. Who can forget the three-ring circus CNN created around that so-called “pandemic,” complete with a ghoulish “death tracker” that mysteriously disappeared right after Joe Biden was installed in the White House?

But truthfully, is it any wonder that a creepy little viper, who was hatched by demonic forces, would resort to fear-mongering and shameless propaganda to brainwash and manipulate innocent people?
