

Biden's New DoE Hire is a Queer Activist Who Brags About 'Puppy Play' Gimp Kink

Description

USA: The Biden administration's latest Department of Energy hire is a "queer activist" who brags about his "kink" of leading other gay men who are pretending to be dogs around on leashes before having sex with them.

We truly live in hell.

Sam Brinton was recently hired by the DoE as the Spent Fuel and Waste Disposition Deputy.

A Metro Weekly article contains some illuminating details about Brinton's lifestyle as a handler in the "pup community." And yes, it's every bit as degenerate as you might think.

IN THE PUP COMMUNITY, handlers function the same way dog owners do, keeping a watchful eye on their charge and reining in the pups if needed. It's the handlers who train the pups and teach them discipline, doling out rewards or punishments based on good or bad behavior.

"Think of any bio-dog," [Pup] Gryphn says. "You can train them. It's this 'go do this' reward system, just like a bio-dog. So let's say you're playing fetch, you throw the ball, the pup picks it up, brings it back, and drops it at your feet. You're going to reward him, whether it's petting him or anything like that."

“Or, let’s go to an extreme,” he continues. “Let’s say you’re doing pup play around the house and the pup decides to pee on the floor. Obviously the pup is going to be punished for that. Typically, when we’re being humans, it’s ‘Why would you correct me in front of so-and-so? That’s wrong, don’t do that. Don’t speak for the next five minutes,’ something like that.”

Just like the pups they are tasked with watching over, some handlers need to enter their own headspace when engaging in puppy play.

“My headspace is equivalent to the mom who sees her kid in danger, or the dad who wants to teach his son how to play football,” says Nubi’s 27-year-old handler, Sam [Brinton]. “It’s the concept of the teacher and nurturer.... My job is to make sure that while he’s in headspace, I’m keeping him safe.”

Brinton also explains how he has difficulty making his ‘dog’ stop pretending to be a dog before he has anal sex with it.

“I actually have trouble when we transition from pup play to having sex. Like, ‘No, I can’t have you whimper like that when we’re having sex,’ because I don’t want to mix that world. It’s interesting, because he doesn’t have to come out of pup mode to have me f*ck him. I personally have to bring him out of pup perception for me. But then I’m still treating him as a submissive to me.”

The LGBT activist also explains how he believes he is having “sex with animals” and that there’s nothing wrong with that.

“One of the hardest things about being a handler is that I’ve honestly had people ask, ‘Wait, you have sex with animals?’” They believe it’s abusive, that it’s taking advantage of someone who may not be acting up to a level of human responsibility.... The other misperception is that I have some really messed up background, like, did I have some horrible childhood trauma that made me like to have sex with animals.”

During a video presentation for far-left outlet Now This, Brinton lectured the viewer about the necessity of using proper pronouns so as to cater to people with mental disorders.

This is the Biden’s new Dept of Energy hire: gender fluid with a background in having sex with animals, “kink,” and drag. Even in Weimar, this kind of perverted degeneracy was kept underground. One can only think what the eventual counterreaction will be.

“Even in Weimar, this kind of perverted degeneracy was kept underground,” commented Jon Miller. “One can only think what the eventual counterreaction will be.”

“He has worked his way up through the progressive establishment,” writes Rod Dreher. “This is what it means to have Democratic Party governance now: a freak show. None of those people recognize it as a freak show. Appointing to the federal government’s nuclear management agency a weirdo who puts his wing-wang up the rear end of men who pretend to be dogs, and brags about it to the media, is just another day of celebrating Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion™.”

“The day before yesterday, this dude parading his kink in public would have been considered a disqualifying character flaw. Today, with the baizuocracy, his fetish is probably what catapulted him over other qualified applicants for the job. Because this is not only who the Democrats are, it’s what the American establishment has become. They hate normality.”

Brinton is also a campaigner against conversation therapy, giving a speech about the issue while wearing red lipstick at an event in 2018.

Meanwhile, China thinks that America’s obsession with wokeism and identity politics will literally lead to the internal collapse of the United States.

The Department of Defense was warned about this nearly a decade ago, yet the military-industrial complex has decided to weaponize identity politics as a form of neo-imperialism.

Moscow and Beijing are very much aware of this agenda, which is why they go to great lengths to prevent what Vladimir Putin described as a “virus” infecting their society.
