

Black Missouri Teen Arrested After Footage Shows Her Brutally Beating White Girl Into A Seizure

Description

MISSOURI : Police in St Louis, Missouri have arrested a teenage girl after footage emerged of a confrontation showing a savage beating of a student from Hazelwood East High School.

The disturbing video shows the girl repeatedly smashing the other student's head into the concrete while repeatedly calling her a "bitch," and then leaving her having a seizure on the ground.

A group of students then began an all out brawl before police were called to the scene close to the school this past Friday.

The girl reportedly suffered a traumatic brain injury and is listed in critical condition in hospital, while the assailant was arrested on assault charges Saturday, taken to the St. Louis County Family Court and held in custody through to Sunday.

Social media content suggests that the victim had been the target of bullying at the school.

James Clark, vice president of public safety and community response at the Urban League, described the incident as "a glimpse into the mentality and the culture of our young people."

"The social pressure is to be socially dysfunctional," he told KSDK, adding "Who can be the loudest? Who can be the most disruptive?" "Bullying and fighting in the community is an issue for which we all need to take ownership and work towards a resolution for the sake of our children," school officials said in a statement.
