

California Cafe Owner Charges Mask Wearers $5 Extra

Description

USA: A cafe owner in California is charging people who wear face masks an extra $5 dollars, which is donated to charity, while offering those who throw their masks away a 50% discount.

"I don't think $5 to charity is too much to ask from mask-wearing customers who claim to care so much about the community they live in," Chris Castleman, owner of Fiddleheads Cafe in Mendocino.

Proceeds from the fees go to Project Sanctuary, a domestic abuse charity, with different charities also set to see the benefit in future.

Hilariously, Castleman is also adding on an extra $5 if he overhears customers bragging about getting a COVID-19 vaccine.

Both fees are optional, presumably so Castleman can avoid irate cancel culture leftists reporting him for discrimination.

In addition, customers who throw their masks in the trash will receive a whopping 50% discount for their contribution to restoring sanity.

"I don't force anyone to pay," said Castleman. "I give them the freedom of choice, which seems to be a foreign concept in these parts of the country."

"The government shut everything down. Everyone wearing a mask is complicit," he added, noting that customers were free to find a different cafe if they didn't like it.

"I don't believe in mask-wearing," he said. "Our customer base has been strongly aligned with our beliefs, but I think some are really angry at our cafe," said Castleman.

Americans who for whatever reason refused to wear face masks have been attacked, publicly shamed and socially ostracized for the best part of a year.

If mask zealots care so much about their community, how could they possibly complain about a $5 donation to a domestic abuse charity, especially given the fact that the lockdowns which they vehemently supported have led to a surge in domestic abuse?
