

Coroner: BBC Host Lisa Shaw Died From Blood Clots Caused by AstraZeneca COVID-19 Vaccine

Description

UK: BBC host Lisa Shaw died at the age of 44 after receiving the AstraZeneca COVID-19 jab, and a coroner has confirmed that her death was the result of complications from receiving the experimental vaccine.

“Lisa died due to complications of an AstraZeneca Covid vaccination,” the coroner said.

Shaw developed blood clots in her brain shortly after receiving the vaccine. She developed a “vaccine-induced thrombotic thrombocytopenia,” which supposedly is a very rare side-effect from receiving the COVID-19 jab. She was previously healthy before submitting to the vaccine.

Shaw received the first dose of the AstraZeneca COVID-19 jab on April 29, and then she was admitted to the University Hospital of North Durham on May 13 after suffering from severe headaches.

Eventually, Shaw suffered a hemorrhage and emergency surgery was performed on her in an attempt to save her life. It ultimately failed, and she died as a result of this vaccine-related injury.

Unfortunately for Shaw’s family, it will not be easy to receive damages from the culprits of her untimely death. Big League Politics has reported about how many of these pharmaceutical corporations are exempt from liability for their experimental and dangerous COVID-related jabs:

“The US government has granted Pfizer and Moderna immunity from liability in case people develop severe side effects from their COVID-19 vaccines.”

The Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness (PREP) Act allows the Department of Health and Human Services to provide liability immunity for “certain medical countermeasures,” such as vaccines, except in cases of “willful misconduct.”

According to CNBC, someone who develops severe side effects from a COVID-19 vaccine can neither sue the FDA for authorizing the vaccine, nor one’s employer for mandating it.

And although it is theoretically possible to receive money from the government to cover lost wages and out-of-pocket medical expenses following “irreparable harm” from a vaccine, only 29 claims—6 percent of all claims—have received compensation over the past decade.

In short, don't count on compensation for a COVID-19 vaccine gone wrong. And don't count on seeing any of those "you may be entitled to financial compensation" commercials for it either."

Many will die because of the cruel machinations of the one-world technocracy that is taking shape across the world. Shaw's death caused by vaccine injury will be one of the few that will make any headlines.
