

COVID-19 vaccines are killing shocking numbers of doctors in Canada

Description

CANADA: Doctors all over Canada are dying due to the Wuhan coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccines, with data suggesting that one doctor dies every other day due to the experimental jabs.

Entrepreneur and COVID-19 vaccine researcher Steve Kirsch noted that the data for the actual number of Canadian physicians being killed by the vaccines is difficult to find due to the refusal of Canadian mainstream media to cover the stories.

Fortunately, he and many other vaccine researchers have cobbled together enough information to paint a better picture of just how many doctors have died.

One doctor interviewed by Kirsch noted that he had heard about at least 15 deaths of Canadian doctors over the last nine months. The doctor, who has been practicing for over 30 years, noted that he has never experienced any spike in unusual deaths of doctors before.

“Why is he now, all of a sudden, hearing of so many deaths, and why are these deaths all happening very soon after vaccination?” wrote Kirsch.

The researcher further noted that, from July 13 to July 28, seven doctors passed away, an average of one doctor every other day for two weeks.

Official causes of death were noted for being very unusual. Two of them died while swimming and another died in her sleep.

“The fact checkers assure us all that all of these doctors died for other reasons; the fact that they all died right after the vaccine was simply bad luck,” wrote Kirsch.

Hospitals and media all claim doctor deaths not related to vaccines

The deaths of the seven doctors made headline news because three of the seven doctors came from Mississauga Hospital in Ontario – a fact that nobody was able to deny.

The three doctors – Dr. Lorne Segall, Dr. Stephen McKenzie and Dr. Jakub Sawicki – all died within three days of each other, from July 17 to 21. Mainstream media outlets claimed that Segall and Sawicki had cancer – stage 4 lung and stage 4 gastric cancers, respectively – and McKenzie died of an “unspecified illness.”

On July 16, Dr. Paul Hannam, Chief of Emergency Medicine and Program Medical Director at North York General Hospital in Toronto, died. Hannam, 50, was an Olympic sailor and marathon runner in perfect health. His cause of death is still not being revealed, but both the hospital and corporate media have vehemently denied any links to the COVID-19 vaccines.

On July 23, Dr. Shahriar Jalali Mazlouman, 44, a family physician from the western province of Saskatchewan, was reported to have died in a swimming accident. Reports claim he was found dead at a local swimming pool, and his death is supposedly not related to the COVID-19 vaccines.

On July 26, Dr. Ryan Buyting, a neurosurgery resident working for the state-backed Alberta Health Services in Edmonton, passed away. He was only 26 years old and at his peak of health. He was described as having an exceptional work ethic. His death has not been officially attributed to a specific reason, making it very likely it was connected to the COVID-19 vaccine.

Finally, the seventh doctor to die within two weeks is Dr. Candace Nayman, 27, a pediatric resident at McMaster Children's Hospital in Hamilton, Ontario. She is a triathlete and expert swimmer who collapsed while swimming.
