

Covid 9-11: The New Pharaohs

Description

“There probably hasn’t been a period of sustained oligarchic piss-taking at this level since the time of the pharaohs. I fully expect them to declare themselves gods next.” – Ian Jenkins ‘Corporate Capture’ or ‘Client Politics’ is a term which really should not require any elaboration, but just for the hell of it, let’s take the first definition that Google throws up.

‘Corporate capture’ is a phenomenon where private industry uses its political influence to take control of the decision-making apparatus of the state, such as regulatory agencies, law enforcement entities, and legislatures.

That should suffice us, although I would prefer to describe it as an historical process rather than an isolated phenomena; something intrinsically tied to the dynamic of capital accumulation which has taken from the poor and given to the rich, it seems, from time immemorial. One might also define it as the cancerous influence of private ownership over a tenuous system of so-called representative democracy which for a short time conceded a few modest comforts to its subjugated labouring classes, typically packaged as ‘rights’, ‘freedoms’, and ‘liberties’.

Understanding this process gives us the lens through which to best understand how we got to where we are – smack in the middle of the biggest medical fraud in history – a manufactured crisis engineered by grand thieves and arch felons to push an agenda so diabolical that even the most rational minds turn away in disbelief. An agenda which now requires that everyone on the planet be injected with an experimental substance which has never been used on humans before and for which there have been no long term studies. An agenda to depopulate and sterilise. An agenda to catalog and control every living thing. To bring together the technological and biological. To “become the masters of our own evolution”.

This is a medical fraud on an unfathomable scale. We are living in a modern example of Joseph Goebbels “Big Lie”

“If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it. The lie can be maintained only for such time as the State can shield the people from the political, economic and/or military consequences of the lie. It thus becomes vitally important for the State to use all of its powers to repress dissent, for the truth is the mortal enemy of the lie, and thus by extension, the truth is the greatest enemy of the State.”

Corporate capture explains how a company like Pfizer, which in 2009 was fined $2.3 BILLION dollars for “bribing doctors and suppressing adverse trial results” in the largest healthcare fraud settlement in history, is now raking in even more billions of taxpayer dollars to supply an unlicensed medical product with full indemnity from litigation arising from harm or injury.

It explains how a Member of Parliament can stand on the floor of parliament and read into the record of parliament study after study showing that there are cheap and effective treatments and prophylaxes for Covid-19; where the chief Medical Officer can state publicly that the risks from these new experimental medical products outweigh any possible benefits, while the Prime Minister and State Premiers appear on the nightly news demanding that everyone MUST receive their ‘safe and effective’ jabs before their constitutional guarantees and basic human rights can be restored.

This process explains how the leader of the federal opposition is now campaigning on a promise to build “fit for purpose quarantine facilities in every state and territory.” I suggest that it might be instructive to give them names befitting their place in history: Arbeitsdorf, Auschwitz, Bergen-Belsen, Buchenwald, Dachau, Flossenbürg, Gross-Rosen, Herzogenbusch and so on.

This process explains how a man accused of genocide in his own country now sits at the helm of the World Health Organisation, doing the bidding of its corporate sponsors. It explains how the same organisation, in preparation for this manufactured crisis, could change its guidelines and even the very definitions of clinical terms such as ‘pandemic’ and ‘herd immunity’ in preparation for the rollout of Operation Covid-19

This is the process by which the mass mainstream media join in perfect harmony to the warn us of new cases and deadly scarriants which are now said to be causing second and third waves of ‘the pandemic’. It is also the process whereby one can expect to be ridiculed and censored for any speech involving keywords such as antibody dependent enhancement, mRNA technology, pathogenic priming, and gain of function research. Other forbidden topics include herd immunity, natural immunity, informed consent, bodily autonomy and even ‘evidence based research.’ This is censorship that would make Orwell blush.

For those who would deny the existence of this agenda, it is recommended to visit the World Economic Forum’s own website, where their covid action platform is spelled out in explicit detail, and the United Nations website, where one can read about Agenda 21 and Agenda 2030. The ruling class have never bothered to hide their plans from us.

For anyone who doubts that this is an entirely manufactured crisis, I would simply point to all-cause mortality figures from the last 18 months, which are readily available from government sources worldwide, and which show that the number of deaths occurring in most countries is nothing outside of normal trends. In fact the death rate is a little lower than average. But don’t worry, I’m sure we’ll see it begin to ramp up once everyone has been jabbed. This will of course be blamed on the new scarriants.

Once again defying all previous medical knowledge – As a virus mutates it becomes more virulent but less pathogenic. At least, that was the accepted dogma up until 2019. But of course, facts don't matter when it comes to Covid-19, because this public health emergency has nothing to do with science. It is a manufactured crisis. A spectacle. A theatrical performance. A BIG LIE.

Masks required outdoors. Masks not required when seated. Must stand 1.5m apart at all times. Must sit down while eating or drinking. Only 30 allowed at a funeral. Up to 100 allowed at a wedding. Places of worship closed. Football games open. Can't visit a dying relative, OK to visit a brothel. One side of the street under lockdown. Other side of the street open for business...

The arbitrary nature of our imprisonment follows a psychological protocol known as touchless torture. The idea is to never let the victim acclimate to their surroundings. It is a process of continual squeeze-release. Do you feel traumatized? That is the whole idea. Surrender your will. Take the vaccine. It's safe and effective and guarantees full and robust immunity. Even when it doesn't. Even when thousands are experiencing adverse reactions, from myocarditis and pericarditis through to cerebral venous sinus thrombosis (blood clots on the brain). All for a disease with a better than 99.9% survival rate for most age groups!

Corporate capture as an historical process is certainly something worthy of thorough investigation, but to do so would require a detailed study of the evolution of capitalism from its 16th century roots to the present day. Probably more of a deep dive than befits our present purposes. Perhaps instead we could begin with a cursory investigation into some of the behind the scenes fuckery which shaped much of the 20th century and led to the point where monopoly capital now dominates every aspect of our daily lives.

One of the key players in this story is the Rockefeller Foundation, which has been described as “the unparalleled 20th century health philanthropy heavyweight”.

Sidebar – While the story of the Rockefeller dynasty usually begins with the oil magnate John D Rockefeller, dishonourable mention should be given to his father, William A Rockefeller, a literal a snake oil salesman, who would go from town to town posing as a deaf mute and selling ‘magic pills.’

John D Rockefeller was one of America's original robber barons and the world's first oil billionaire. After having his monopoly broken up under antitrust laws in the 1890s, Rockefeller reinvented himself as the patron saint of the all American cult of scientific philanthropy, following in the footsteps of fellow robber baron and steel mogul Andrew Carnegie. Apart from the obvious benefits of allowing them to launder their exploitation-derived riches through private non-profits, Carnegie's Gospel Of Wealth approach to systemic charity afforded wealthy capitalists considerable influence over social welfare, while also helping to stave off working class radicalism during the progressive era of the early 20th century.

While the public face of the Rockefellers has always been the image of the kindly old man handing out dimes to children, behind the scenes the family funded eugenics programs from São Paulo to Tuskegee, aimed mostly at sterilising blacks. John D Rockefeller also helped to set up the School of Hygiene and Public Health at Johns Hopkins University in 1916, which has a chequered history of its own, beginning with its involvement with the ‘Spanish Flu’ pandemic (neither Spanish in origin, nor a flu) which killed between 50 and 100 million people between 1918 and 1919. This outbreak of bacterial pneumonia actually originated at Fort Riley, Kansas, where the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research had injected 6000 soldiers with an experimental bacterial meningitis vaccine cultured in horses. America's entry into WWI saw the infection travel with US military personnel across the Atlantic, leading to the deaths of tens of millions. In October 2019 Johns Hopkins partnered with the Gates Foundation to host Event 201 – a 'pandemic preparedness exercising' simulating the very events we have seen play out in the last 18 months.

From the International Health Board to the World Health Organisation, the Rockefeller influence over global public health efforts has been ever present. It was the Rockefeller Foundation which established the institutional framework for international public health through its International Health Board, eventually becoming the major patron of the League of Nations Health Organisation, which served as a tool for geopolitical influence throughout most of the 93 countries and colonies in which it operated. Rockefeller's disease campaigns would bring together leading figures from the worlds of medicine, education and banking as 'trustees' of permanent public agencies. This would become the future template for impact investment, where venture capitalists are induced to address social and/or environmental problems while also turning a profit.

While one could argue that the WHO from its very foundations had been an instrument of geopolitical influence, it certainly lost any autonomy it might have had in the 1970s, under the doctrine of neoliberalism, aka economic rationalism. Neoliberalism saw the roll back of concessions given to a devastated working class in the hope of reinvigorating a world economy brought to its knees by two world wars and a great depression. The era of Keynesianism – the idea that if you give a little money to a poor person they are inclined to spend rather than save, creating 'demand' which leverages 'the multiplier effect', driving 'economic growth' and creating 'prosperity' – had enjoyed its time in the sun, but by the 70s it was time for the giant asset stripping juggernaut of capitalist imperialism to resume where it had left off before being so rudely interrupted. (Keynes himself was member of the London Eugenics Society – the ruling class are cut from the same cloth.) This seismic shift saw the WHO transformed from being essentially a vehicle to serve the public good, into a tool ripe for the exploitation of venture capital.

A lot of things happened in the 1970s which one might think of as unrelated events. The Arab oil crisis. The Nixon Shock. The creation of the petrodollar. Pinochet. The 'opening up' of China. The creation of the World Economic Forum. The hijacking of the environmental movement by capital under the pseudoscience of 'climate change'. The increased reliance on private funding by public health bodies. All are examples of corporate capture, the purpose of which, as Matt Taibbi eloquently puts it, is to suck the last bits of meat from the carcass of the middle class.

We could fill in the blanks with how the Rockefeller foundation came to be involved with the Centers for Disease Control in both the USA and China, how Bill Gates seemed to follow in the footsteps of JD Rockefeller, having his own monopoly broken up via an antitrust suit in the 1990s, reinventing himself as a philanthropist while channeling his money back into the his own bank accounts through private non-profits like the Bill and Melinda Gates foundation, and how he came to be simultaneously the main patron of the World Health Organisation and the world's richest man. We could talk about his shares in supposedly competing brands like Moderna and Pfizer. We could talk about the Blackstone Group with its $619 billion in assets under management and its ties to Gates.

Ultimately all of this spells one thing. Corporate capture. Client politics. Enclosure. Forget capitalism and any noble (or ignoble) ideas of competition and a free market. The oligarchs own everything. They own all the major industries. They own all the media. They own the tech companies. They own all the research institutes. They control public health. They control public education. They control the welfare system. They have the politicians in their pockets. They plan and manage the pandemics, just like they plan the wars.

What we see today is the culmination of an historic process. The absolute concentration of wealth into the hands of a tiny few, the 1% of the 1%. What we are currently witnessing is breathtaking in its mendacity, in its sheer scope and its arrogance. This is the implementation of the oligarchs final plan. Their New World Order is being rolled out before our eyes, rebranded and repackaged as the Great Reset.

None of this should be considered either esoteric or 'conspiracy theory'. From eugenics to transhumanism to depopulation to the new economic world order, this is what the oligarchs have been building all along. A system of absolute control. A pre-feudalist slave technocracy powered by the limitless energy of Friedrich Hayek, Milton Friedman and Ayn Rand spinning perpetually in their graves. You will own nothing, because they will own everything.

'Trust the science' has become a euphemism for blind obedience. Mask wearing and QR code check-ins, tokens of fealty to a system of constant surveillance and perpetual enslavement. Meanwhile the colonisation of human thought and expression through cybernetics and machine learning continues apace.

Forget capitalism; it was only ever a concession anyway. Forget feudalism; this is social stratification on a scale the world has never seen. Forget the anthropocene; controlling the weather is for mortals.

The oligarchs see themselves as gods.

This is the their apotheosis.
