

Drones are crowding Ukraine's skies, largely paralyzing battlefield

Description

UKRAINE : So many drones patrol the skies over Ukraine's front lines — hunting for any signs of movement — that Ukrainian and Russian troops have little ability to move on the battlefield without being spotted, and blown up.

Instead, on missions, they rush from one foxhole to another, hoping the pilots manning the enemy drones overhead are not skilled enough to find them inside. Expert drone operators, their abilities honed on the front, can stalk just a single foot soldier to their death, diving after them into hideouts and trenches.

By Siobhán O'Grady and Kostiantyn Khudov
Category

1. Army-Wars-Conflict Zones-Military Tech.
2. Main

Date Created
04/15/2024