

Finland Exposes Massive Covid Reporting Scandal: Nearly 40% of 'Covid Deaths' Were Fraudulent

Description

FINLAND: Finland has become one of the first countries to uncover evidence that state agencies around the world committed fraud in their Covid deaths reporting during the pandemic.

The blockbuster report sheds light on how public health agencies around the world overhyped 'Covid-related deaths' in order to drive mass hysteria.

According to Sirkka Goebeler, chief specialist at the Finnish Institute for Health and Welfare (THL), Covid-19 has not been the actual cause of death in up to 40 percent of fatalities attributed to the illness in Finland. As a result, they will not end up in Statistics Finland's official data as coronavirus deaths.

As the Finnish report states, "Goebeler's unit examines all Finnish death certificates before they are forwarded to the state statistics bureau. The unit focuses on coronavirus-related death certificates where the attending physician has listed Covid as either the primary or a contributing cause of death."

"The THL tally of Covid-related deaths stood at 6,407 on Tuesday – but that figure includes all deaths that have occurred within 30 days of a positive coronavirus test," the report continued. "According to Goebeler, in nearly 4,000 of these cases, Covid is listed as the primary or immediate cause of death. In almost 1,600 cases, coronavirus is listed as a contributing factor."

"In approximately 900 cases initially recorded as Covid-related deaths, the actual death certificates do not contain any indication of coronavirus infection at all," the report added.

The Finnish report further substantiates the complaints of statistical analysts and public health experts that there was a failure to differentiate between deaths from Covid and deaths with Covid during the pandemic. There is evidence that in the United States the conflation was deliberate in order to drive and perpetuate a state of public alarm.

The most obvious red flags were that approximately 95% of Covid mortalities had multiple serious comorbidities and the average age of death was around life expectancy. CDC statistics show that 95% of Covid-related deaths list an average of 4 comorbidities, while 5% list Covid as the only known cause of death. Such comorbidities include cardiovascular disease (10.5%), diabetes (7.3%), and cancer (5.6%). The average age of Covid-related death is 77 years old.

Even with the massive conflation, now being corrected in Finland, Covid-related deaths stand at just 0.084% of the world population, which is relatively mild in comparison to other major global pandemics. Finland's statisticians explained why the commonplace official manner of Covid deaths reporting was highly flawed.

"Figures that end up as part of international comparisons may include, for instance, cases where a patient had a serious heart attack before or after being infected with coronavirus, and eventually dies due to heart failure," the report notes. "The accompanying Covid illness may be very mild, and therefore not listed as the cause of death."

In the early stages of the pandemic, the metric based on the 30-day time frame was more useful, according to Goebeler. Even then, there were relatively few false positives. The median age of those who have died after positive coronavirus tests has risen since last spring from 84 to 85. The median age for men is 81, while for women it is 87.

"Most deaths now occur at the very end of the natural life cycle," said Goebeler. "You can count on the fingers of one hand the number of patients under 60 who have died solely from Covid since last March," she added.

As earlier reported, Covid pandemic coordinator under the Trump administration, Dr. Deborah Birx, admitted in her book "Silent Invasion: The Untold Story of the Trump Administration, Covid-19, and Preventing the Next Pandemic Before It's Too Late" that she would 'hide' data that was being sent to states to guide their Covid responses.

"Our Saturday and Sunday report-writing routine soon became: write, submit, revise, hide, resubmit," Birx writes. "Fortunately, this strategic sleigh-of-hand worked."

In a glaring example of hiding data fraud in broad daylight, Dr. Birx effectively admitted that the United States was exaggerating Covid-related mortality rates.

"So, I think in this country, we've taken a very liberal approach to mortality," Birx said at an April 2020 press conference. "There are other countries that if you had a preexisting condition, and let's say, the virus called you to go to the ICU, and then have a heart or kidney problem, some countries are recording that as a heart issue or a kidney issue and not a COVID-19 death. Right now we're still recording it. And we'll, I mean, the great thing about having forms that come in and a form that has the ability to mark it as COVID 19 infection. The intent is right now that those, if someone dies with COVID 19, we are counting that as a COVID 19 death.”

A reporter rightly pushed back: “Can you be sure? I mean, you hear from coroners that that’s not necessarily the case or are you sure? How can you be confident about that?”

It was an appropriate question at the time. The answer is simple: The public health experts were intentionally trying to drive a state of panic during the Covid pandemic. The “experts” rigged the Covid debate and the American public now demands accountability.
