

Freedom Of Speech Needs “Recalibration” – Aussie Commissioner Sparks Outrage At WEF

Description

AUSTRALIA: Australian eSafety commissioner Julie Inman raised eyebrows on Monday, telling the World Economic Forum that there needs to be a “recalibration” of free speech.

“We are finding ourselves in a place where we have increasing polarization everywhere, and everything feels binary when it doesn’t need to be – so I think we’re going to have to think about a recalibration of a whole range of human rights that are playing out online – from freedom of speech, to be free from online violence. Or the right of data protection, to the right of child dignity,” whatever that last part means.

The response to Inman’s Orwellian comments were about what one might expect.

Lol @wef forgot to disable comments on just one of their tweets, and I pointed it out. Well now I’m blocked. @zerohedge pic.twitter.com/gHWv44iSB5

Recalibrate this: fuck off. Fuck all the way off, then keep fucking off until you don’t think you can possibly fuck off any more.

Then keep right on fucking off. #FreeSpeech <https://t.co/VxCnbfBwGI>

?What is “on-line violence”? <https://t.co/b7UtSVq2dO>

“the right to be free from online violence” already exists. You block the person, or turn off your computer, or scroll past, or just close your eyes. We don’t need that to be “recalibrated”.

I’d like to recalibrate how much influence these people have over my rights, though.
