Gay Pride Parade in Germany Attacked by "Men of Southern Origin"

Description

GERMANY: A gay pride parade in Germany was attacked by a group of young men of "southern origin," a euphemistic term authorities usually deploy to describe Muslim migrants from North Africa and the Middle East.

The incident occurred in the German city of Karlsurhe last weekend.

Around 30 men of "southern origin" attacked the pride parade, setting fire to a rainbow flag and physically attacking the participants.

"The situation escalated late on Saturday evening when the men stole a rainbow LGBT flag from the parade and set it on fire," reports ReMix News.

"A group surrounded, insulted, and beat the man who had been carrying the flag, the German news outlet Queer.de reported. Those who came to the victim's aid were assaulted as well, with the original victim ending up in the hospital."

Eyewitnesses say victims suffered a number of serious injuries, including concussions and broken bones.

Florian Wahl, a "queer political spokesman" of the SPD parliamentary group in the Baden-Württemberg state parliament, called for an investigation into the police's response to the incident, which victims complain was lackluster.

"Regardless of whether this was the case, we need to train our police officers to deal with hate crime in general and anti-queer attacks in particular," he said.

According to the CSD Karlsruhe association, similar attacks on gay pride parades also took place in numerous other German cities over the weekend.

Last year, then Chancellor Angela Merkel claimed Germany's decision to allow over a million migrants to enter the country from 2015 onwards had been a success.

However, since the influx, violent crime and sexual attacks have skyrocketed.

As Reuters reported, across the whole country, "Violent crime rose by about 10 percent in 2015 and 2016, a study showed. It attributed more than 90 percent of that to young male refugees."

Meanwhile, Germany's left-wing government is pushing for a change in immigration laws which would see 100,000 illegal migrants given amnesty and permanent residency.
