

Healthy Youngsters Are Dying Unexpectedly From Mysterious Syndrome In Australia! Doctors Look For Answers!

Description

AUSTRALIA: Australia is a place known for the totalitarian C-19 restrictions and vaccine mandates. The Deputy Premier of NSW declared that the businesses accepting unvaccinated people would be subject to heavy fines.

The Northern Territory has imposed an authoritarian lockdown on the fully unvaccinated people as officials tried to deal with the Omicron variant.

Every person 16 or older who isn't fully vaccinated can't leave their home until the middle of the following week.

The country confronts the epidemic of Sudden Adult Death Syndrome.

The Daily Mail covered this story:

People aged under 40 are being urged to have their hearts checked because they may potentially be at risk of Sudden Adult Death Syndrome.

The syndrome, known as SADS, has been fatal for all kinds of people regardless of whether they maintain a fit and healthy lifestyle.

SADS is an 'umbrella term to describe unexpected deaths in young people', said The Royal Australian College of General Practitioners, most commonly occurring in people under 40 years of age.

The US-based SADS Foundation has said that over half of the 4,000 annual SADS deaths of children, teens or young adults have one of the top two warning signs present.

Those signs include a family history of a SADS diagnosis or sudden unexplained death of a family member, and fainting or seizure during exercise, or when excited or startled, reported news.com.au.

Last year a 31-year-old woman, Catherine Keane, died in her sleep while living with two friends in Dublin.
