

Karen Kingston uncovers patents revealing “cognitive action” spike protein structures in vaccines (VIDEO 77 min)

Description

- More patents reveal shocking nature of “spike protein” structures in vaccines
- Hybrid structures demonstrate “cognitive action” capabilities
- Described in patents as “intelligent sensor platforms” that carry out instructions
- So-called “spike proteins” seen in electronic microscopy are actually these nanotech platform structures
- They are small enough to enter nervous system cells and alter their behavior
- More details on quantum dots used by the US Army, combined with carbon nanotubes
