Description

Pfizer's covid jab could kill you, but New Zealand government wants you to not worry and get injected anyway

Excess deaths continue to soar in New Zealand, where Medsafe, the nation's official drug safety authority, now admits that covid "vaccines" are more than likely to blame. Still, the agency says, New Zealanders should continue to get jabbed and not worry about such risks – just because.

All-cause deaths in New Zealand are currently 15 percent higher than what is normally the case for the country. Evidence continues to mount showing that mRNA (messenger RNA) shots are the most likely culprit, and yet nothing is being done to protect people.

"By chance, some people will experience new illnesses or die from a pre-existing condition shortly after vaccination, especially if they are elderly," reveals the 46th report from Medsafe on covid vaccine safety, entitled "Adverse events following immunisation with COVID-19 vaccines."

"Therefore, part of our review process includes comparing natural death rates to observed death rates following vaccination, to determine if there are any specific trends or patterns that might indicate a vaccine safety concern."

(Related: Remember in the summer of 2020 when Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern called for all New Zealanders who tested positive for covid to be thrown into quarantine camps?)

New Zealand barely even tracks adverse events following vaccination, so how can the government make these bogus claims?

Medsafe followed up its report with a disclaimer basically suggesting that the shots are not all that dangerous, even though they clearly are. The group cited comparative data between what is reported to CARM (Centre for Adverse Reactions Monitoring), which is New Zealand's version of VAERS (Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System), within 21 days following vaccination and the background rate of deaths from natural causes as "evidence" that the shots are still safe enough to trust.

The problem with CARM, just like the problem with VAERS, is that reporting is voluntary, which means it is massively underreported. Even worse than VAERS, CARM is said to be underreported by an estimated factor of 20 times.

"As a result, there is nothing at all reassuring about this safety report," says The Exposé about its findings.

Another problem with New Zealand's government reporting is that autopsies are not routinely performed on deaths that occur in close proximity to covid vaccination, which begs the question: why?

"The Ministry of Health has consistently refused / omitted to record vaccine status on death certificates or make CARM reporting mandatory," further adds The Exposé. "This makes it very difficult to scientifically and reliably investigate any causal relationship between mRNA vaccination and death or serious illness."

It would appear as though almost no efforts are being made in New Zealand to track much of anything concerning the shots and potentially associated injuries and deaths. How, then, can Medsafe make the claim that there is nothing to worry about in association with getting vaccinated?

"Despite having multiple sources of data and methods of analysis available to it, Medsafe has relied for two years on a single obviously flawed method of comparing CARM data to background rates, despite admitting CARM data is underreported," The Exposé says. "How strange is that? This deficiency is fatal to Medsafe's claims of safety."

"It is scientifically unjustifiable and it wouldn't meet publication criteria. There is no possible justification for omitting to use more reliable forms of causal investigation. Medsafe has avoided public accountability by refusing to debate the issues publicly, omitting publication of key health data, massaging published data, and unforgivably accusing critics of spreading disinformation. These approaches are worthy of a dictatorship but not a modern democracy."
