

The Khazarian Mafia and the Building of Ukraine: We Were Warned 70 Years Ago

Description

“The Marxian program of drastic controls, so repugnant to the free Western mind, was no obstacle to the acceptance of Marxism by many Khazar Jews, for the Babylonian Talmud under which they lived had taught them to accept authoritarian dictation on everything from their immorality to the trade practices. Since the Talmud contained more than 12,000 controls, the regimentation of Marxism was acceptable, provided the Khazar politician, like the Talmudic rabbi, exercised the power of the dictatorship.”

VT: This is a massive read but more vital today as we face world war 3 at the hands of the Khazarian Mafia and their shills Biden and Johnson than at any time in our history.

These idiots sunk a Russian nuclear armed strategic command ship in international waters with over 500 onboard as part of their “end times” strategy.

It took them years but they turned over half of the Christian world into Moloch worshipping evangelists who embrace child sacrifice like it's Sunday dinner.

It's all about population reduction....taking the world down to the 800 million needed to provide slave labor for the overlords who have hidden for over 2300 years.

Ukraine is all about the occult. Netflix has give us a look at the Slavonic history of the occult Khazarians, the root of non-Semitic Jews but other obscure Slavic people's as well and their old gods, the worshippers of Moloch and his incarnations that embraced a following north of the Black Sea (when it formed)...

“The Khazar Jew's frequent equating of anti-Communism with so-called anti-semitism is unfortunate in many ways. In the first place, it is most unfair to loyal American Jews. Charges of anti-Semitism are absurd; moreover, because the Khazar Jew is himself not a Semite (Chapter II, above).

The blood of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob flows not at all (or to a sporadic degree, as from immigrant merchants, fugitives, etc.) in the veins of the Jews who have come to America from Eastern Europe. On the contrary, the blood of Old Testament people does flow in the veins of Palestine Arabs and others who live along the shores of the eastern Mediterranean.

Palestinians, true descendants of Old Testament people, are refugees today from the barbarity of non-Semitic Khazars, who are the rapers, not the inheritors, of the Holy Land!

Charges of anti-Semitism are usually made by persons of Khazar stock, but sometimes they are parroted by shallow people or people who bend to pressure in Protestant churches, in educational institutions, and elsewhere. Seeking the bubble reputation in the form of publicity, or lured by thirty pieces of silver, many big-time preachers have shifted the focus of their thinking from the everlasting life of St. John III, 16, to the no-man spake openly of him of St. John VII, 13.

In their effort to avoid giving offense to non-Christians, or for other reasons, many preachers have also placed their own brand of social-mindedness over individual character, their own conception of human welfare over human excellence, and, in summary, pale sociology over Almighty God (quotes from This morning by John Temple Graves, Charleston S.C., News and Courier, February 10, 1951).

Introduction by Gordon Duff

The text below is, at times, semi-literate and extreme. However, as you move into the 20th century, it becomes lucid and compelling. Much is focused on “the Jews” and, on the whole, there is some balance here, though some language may offend. For that, I apologize.

However, several dozen concepts presented here, along with historical narratives that are, for the most part, supported with adequate sourcing, provide a look at World War I and World War II that now fits what we have long begun to accept, that both wars were needless. On the author:

“Dr. Beaty taught English at Southern Methodist University from 1919 to 1957. He earned his Ph.D. from Columbia University with post-graduate study at the University of Montpellier, France. A worldly man, Beaty served five years in military intelligence during WWII, rounding out his insider’s knowledge. His fingers were on the pulse of what ailed us then as now.”

Read with care, as always.

Review from Amazon.com:

This book is unique in that it not only discusses the internal decay and the external disasters which threaten the life of American people (in fact, of ALL the people), but diagnoses the growing cancer of which they are merely the symptoms.

Going behind the iron curtain of propaganda, censorship, and deception, the author, former Colonel of the Military Intelligence Service, gives to the reader the first comprehensive documented account of the origin, the scope, and the intentions of the "insidious forces working from within," which are seeking to destroy Western civilization.

"An honest and courageous dispeller of the fog of propaganda in which most minds seem to dwell." – Lt. General P. A. Del Valle, USMC (ret.) "I think it ought to be compulsory reading in every public school in America." – Senator William A. Langer, former Chairman, Judiciary Committee

“This book is a magnificent contribution to those who would preserve our American ideals.” – Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, USA (ret.)

To the mighty company of American soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines whose graves are marked by white crosses far from home this book is dedicated with the solemn pledge that the Christian civilization of which they were the finest flower shall not die.

The Iron Curtain Over America

Lt. Gen, George E. Stratemeyer, USAF (ret.), says: I congratulate you on your book and the service you have performed for our country. If my health would permit it I would go on a continuous lecture tour gratis and preach your book and recommendations. My Iron Curtain Over America will be on loan continuously, and I intend to recommend its reading in every letter I write.

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, USA. (ret.), says: It is an inspiration to me to find an author with the courage and energy to research and to secure the publication of such information as you have assembled in order that the poorly informed average American may know wherein the real threats to our Country lurk.

Your book is a magnificent contribution to those who would preserve our American ideals. I think it ought to be compulsory reading in every public school in America. Senator William A. Langer, former Chairman, Judiciary Committee.

Vice Admiral T. G. W. Settle, U.S.N. (ret.), says: The Iron Curtain Over America is a most pertinent and excellently presented treatise on cancer on our national set-up. I hope this book has had and will have, the widest possible dissemination, particularly to our leaders in Washington, and in industry and the press, and that our leaders who are uncontaminated will have their serious attention engaged by it.

Lt, General P. A. Del Valle, USMC (ret), says: I am impelled to write to you to express my admiration of your great service to the Nation in writing this truly magnificent book. No American who has taken the oath of allegiance can afford to miss it, and I heartily recommend it as an honest and courageous dispeller of the fog of propaganda in which most minds seem to dwell.

John Beaty... The author of The Iron Curtain Over America has written or collaborated on, a dozen books. His texts have been used in more than seven hundred colleges and universities, and his historical novel, Swords in the Dawn, published originally in New York, had London and Australian editions and was adopted for state-wide use in the public schools of Texas. His education (M.A., University of Virginia; Ph.D., Columbia University; post-graduate study, University of Montpellier, France ), his travel in Europe and Asia, and his five years with the Military Intelligence Service in World War II rounded out the background for the reading and research (1946-1951) which resulted in The Iron Curtain Over America.

To The Reader...

Many authors of books on the current world scene have been White House confidants, commanders of armies, and others whose authority is indicated by their official or military titles. Such authors need no introduction to the public, A Prospective reader is entitled, however, to know something of the background and experience of an unknown or little-known writer who is offering a comprehensive volume on a great and important subject.

In the spring of 1926, the author was selected by the Albert Kahn Foundation to investigate and report on world affairs. Introduced by preliminary correspondence and provided with numerous letters of introduction to persons prominent in government, politics, and education, he gained something more than a tourist's reaction to the culture and institutions, the movements, and the pressures in the twenty-nine countries which he visited. In several countries, including great powers, he found conditions and attitudes significantly different from the conception of them which prevailed in the United States.

Though previously successful in deposing of his writings, he was unable, however, to get his observations on the world situation published, except as the Annual Report of the Foundation and in his friendly home special foreign correspondent, and in the Southwest Review, in whose files his ?Race and Population, Their Relation to World Peace can still be seen as a virtual prognosis of the oncoming war.

After his return to America in the autumn of 1927, the author kept abreast of world attitudes by correspondence with many of the friends he had made in his travels and by rereading French, German, and Italian news periodicals, as well as certain English language<sup>4</sup> periodicals emanating from Asia.

World trends continued to run counter to what the American people were allowed to know, and a form of virtual censorship blacked out efforts at imparting information.

For instance, though the author's textbooks continued to sell well and though his novel Swords in the Dawn (1937) was favorably received, his book Image of Life (Thomas Nelson and Sons, 1940 ), which attempted to show Americans the grave worldwide significance of the degradation of their cultural standards, was granted, as far as he knows, not a single comment in a book review or a book column in New York. Indeed, the book review periodical with the best reputation for full coverage failed to list Image of Life even under Books Received.

In 1940 – as our President was feverishly and secretly preparing to enter World War II and publicly deny ing any such purpose – the author, a reserve captain, as alert, and in 1941 was called to active duty in the Military Intelligence Service of the War Department General Staff. His first assignment was to write, or help write, short pamphlets on military subjects, studies of several campaigns including those in Western Europe and Norway, and three bulletins on the frustration of an enemy's attempts at sabotage and subversion.

In 1942, the author became a major and Chief of the Historical Section (not the later Historical Branch of the War Department Special Staff). In his new capacity, he supervised a group of experts who prepared a current history of events in the various strategically important areas of the world. Also, he was one of the two editors of the daily secret G-2 Report, which was issued each noon to give persons in high places, including the White House, the world picture as it existed four hours earlier. While Chief of the Historical Section, the author wrote three widely circulated studies of certain phases of the German – Russian campaign.

In 1943 – during which year he was also detailed to the General Staff Corps and promoted to lieutenant colonel the author was made Chief of the Interview Section. In the next three years, he interviewed more than two thousand persons, most of whom were returning from some high mission, some delicate assignment, or some deed of valor – often in a little-known region of the world.

Those interviewed included military personnel in rank from private first class to four stars, diplomatic officials from vice-consuls to ambassadors and special representatives of the President, senators and congressmen returning from overseas investigations, missionaries, explorers, businessmen, refugees, and journalists – among the latter, Raymond Clapper and Ernie Pyle, who were interviewed between their next to the last and their last and fatal voyages.

These significant people were presented sometimes individually but usually to assembled groups of officers and other experts from the various branches of G-2, from other General Staff divisions, from each of the technical services, and from other components interested in vital information which could be had by interview perhaps six weeks before being received in channeled reports. In some cases, the author increased his knowledge of a given area or topic by consulting documents suggested during an interview.

Thus, from those he interviewed, from those specialists for whom he arranged the interviews, and from a study in which he had expert guidance, he had a unique opportunity for learning the history, resources, ideologies, capabilities, and intentions of the great foreign powers. In its most essential aspects, the picture was terrifyingly different from the picture presented by our government to the American people!

After the active phase of the war was over, the author was offered three separate opportunities of further service with the army – all of them interesting, all of them flattering. He wished, however, to return to his home and his university and to prepare himself for trying again to give the American people the world story as he had come to know it; consequently, after being advanced to the rank of colonel, he reverted to inactive status, upon his own request, in December 1946.

Twice thereafter he was recalled for a summer of active duty: in 1947 he wrote a short history of the Military Intelligence Service, and in 1949 he prepared for the Army Field Forces an annotated reading list for officers in the Military Intelligence Reserve.

From 1946 to 1951, the author devoted himself to extending his knowledge of the apparently diverse but actually interrelated events in the various strategic areas of the present-day world. The goal he set for himself was not merely to uncover the facts but to present them with such a body of documented proof that their validity could not be questioned.

Sustaining quotations for significant truths have thus been taken from standard works of reference; from accepted historical writings; from government documents; periodicals of wide public acceptance or of known accuracy in fields related to America's foreign policy; and from contemporary writers and speakers of unquestioned standing.

The final product of a long period of travel, army service, and study is The Iron Curtain Over America. The book is neither memoirs nor apologies, but an objective presentation of things as they are. It differs from many other pro-American books principally in that it not only exhibits the external and internal dangers which threaten the survival of our country but shows how they developed and why they continue to plague us.

The roads we travel so briskly lead out of dim antiquity said General James G. Harbord, and we must study the past because of its bearing on the living present and because it is our only guide for the future.

The author has thus turned on the light in certain darkened or dimmed out years tremendously significant phases of the history of medieval and modern Europe. Since much compression was obligatory, and since many of the facts will to most readers be wholly new and disturbing, Chapters I and II may be described as hard reading. Even a rapid perusal of them, however, will prepare the reader for understanding better the problems of our country as they are revealed in succeeding chapters.

In The Iron Curtain Over America, authorities are cited not in a bibliography or in notes but along with the text to which they are pertinent. The documentary matter is enclosed by parentheses, and many readers will pass over it. It is there, however, for those who wish its assurance of validity, for those who wish to locate and examine the context of quoted material, and especially for those who wish to use this book as a springboard for further study.

In assembling and documenting his material, the author followed Shakespearean injunction, nothing extenuating, nor set down aught in malice. Writing with no goal except to serve his country by telling the truth, fully substantiated, he has humbly and reverently taken as his motto, or text, a promise of Christ the Saviour as recorded in the Gospel According to Saint John (VIII, 32): And Ye Shall Know The Truth And The Truth Shall Make You Free.

Only an informed American people can save America and they can save it only if all those, to whom it is given to know, will share their knowledge with others.
