

“This Is Scary!” – Dr. Naomi Wolf Warns that Pfizer Is Performing Gain of Function Viral Research and Admitted It in Their Latest Statement (VIDEO)

Description

As Kristinn Taylor reported earlier, pharmaceutical giant Pfizer quietly issued a statement responding to the Project Veritas video of Pfizer research director Jordon Trishton Walker talking about Pfizer exploring “directed evolution” research in the development of the specific Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine.

However, Pfizer does say that on occasion and that, “working with collaborators, we have conducted research where the original SARS-CoV-2 virus has been used to express the spike protein from new variants of concern.”

New York, N.Y., January 27, 2023 – Allegations have recently been made regarding research at Pfizer and the company would like to set the record straight.

In the ongoing development of the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine, we have conducted directed evolution research. Working with collaborators, we have used a virus that the virus has been used to express the spike protein from new variants. A variant of concern has been identified by public health authorities. We are studying the ability of an existing vaccine to induce antibodies that neutralize the virus. This data is available through peer reviewed scientific journals and used to inform a vaccine update is required.

In addition, to meet U.S. and global regulatory requirements for our vaccine, we conduct in vitro work (e.g., in a laboratory culture dish) to identify potential resistance to the two components. With a naturally evolving virus, it is important to ensure that this work is conducted using computer simulations or mutations of the virus. In a limited number of cases when a full virus does not contain an active protease, we engineered to enable the assessment of antiviral activity in cells. In addition, we have undertaken in cells incubated with SARS-CoV-2 and nirmatrelvir in order to determine whether the main protease can mutate to yield resistant strains of the virus. This is required by U.S. and global regulators for all antiviral products and is conducted at institutions in the U.S. and around the world.

Fact-based information rooted in sound science is vitally important to the public. Pfizer remains committed to transparency and helping alleviate the devastation caused by COVID-19.

Dr. Naomi Wolf joined Steve Bannon Saturday on The War Room following the press release by Pfizer. Dr. Wolf was very concerned with the actual details included in the statement.

Dr. Naomi Wolf: They go on to say, “Working with collaborators we have conducted research where the original SARS-CoC-2 virus has been used to express the spike protein from new variants of concern.” So that is basically saying, “Yes, we are indeed driving gain of function research. We are indeed experimenting to making viruses more lethal.” And the word that scares me is ‘collaborators.’ Because they’re not saying American collaborators. They’re not saying we’re working with Moderna, we’re working with the FDA, we’re working with the CDC... It could be our existential adversaries working as they have before to make a virus more lethal.

Dr. Naomi Wolf and The Daily Clout recently released “War Room/Daily Clout Pfizer Documents Analysis Reports – Find Out What Pfizer, FDA Tried to Conceal”.

This volume includes 50 reports written by highly-credentialed War Room/DailyClout Pfizer Documents Analysis Project volunteers who studied the Pfizer documents released under court order by the US FDA.

The book has reached #6 Paid Kindle Nonfiction Best Sellers USA and is #1 in Education Theory Research, Science Methodology & Statistics and Scientific Research.

According to the book, Pfizer knew during the clinical trial that its COVID-19 mRNA drug was harmful on a large scale, could be shed from person to person, and even contributed to deaths. Despite this knowledge, Pfizer and the FDA, assisted by the CDC and mainstream media, suppressed this information and prevented people from being able to give informed consent to receive treatment.

“The Pfizer Reports eBook provides an extensive analysis of the primary source Pfizer clinical trial documents to the public. The reports show that Pfizer knew during the trial that its COVID-19 mRNA drug was harmful on a large scale, could be shed from person to person, and even contributed to deaths,” said Amy Kelly, Project Manager of the Pfizer Document Investigations Team. “People who took this medication were not fully informed about its harms prior to receiving it, so one of the core tenets of medicine – informed consent for patients – was grossly violated.”

“The groundbreaking new book sends shockwaves through Pfizer’s criminal enterprise.” writes The Vigilant Fox in a review of the ebook documents. Mr. Fox further states “Seventy-five years. That’s how long Pfizer and the FDA tried to hide the Pfizer documents from public view — long after just about everyone affected is dead. It wasn’t until renowned attorney Aaron Siri led a FOIA case against the FDA that a federal judge ordered the documents to be released in 108 days, the same amount of time it took the FDA to approve the Covid-19 injections.
