

Trump COVID official describes mRNA vaccine as a 'biological weapon'

Description

USA: Nations such as Denmark have halted the booster push for those under the age of 50 as more information concerning the risk-reward analysis of the vaccines has become available. Now, a Trump COVID official is describing the mRNA Vaccine as a biological weapon.

Dr. Paul Alexander, a former HHS consultant to the Trump administration, said on Infowars that the mRNA COVID injections were similar to a “biological weapon ... that has been released.”

Alexander lambasted Dr. Anthony Fauci and the American response to the declared COVID-19 pandemic throughout the lengthy interview. The two talked about a variety of topics, such as former President Donald Trump, boosters that might never stop, and the harm that lockdowns bring to children.

Dr. Alexander told Jones that he believes the vaccine has been weaponized because of the pressure to continue vaccinating individuals despite the major immune-system issues that have, in his opinion, resulted from this.
