

Video: Fauci Declares It “Horrrifying” After CPAC Crowd Applauds Young People Being Aware Of Vaccine Side Effects

Description

USA: Appearing on CNN Sunday, Anthony Fauci described it “horrrifying” that a crowd at the CPAC gathering applauded when a guest speaker declared that young people are educating themselves about the side effects of the COVID vaccine.

Conservative writer Alex Berenson was speaking about the government’s attempts to indiscriminately push the vaccine on people of all ages, including young people who are statistically more at risk from the vaccine than from the virus.

“They were hoping, the federal government was hoping, they could sucker 90 percent of the population into getting vaccinated,” Berenson said, adding “younger people are well aware of what the risks really are and they are well aware of the side effect profile of the vaccines.”

The comments drew applause from sections of the crowd.

Watch:

When asked for his thoughts by CNN host Jake Tapper, Fauci responded “It’s horrrifying...I just don’t get that. I mean, and I don’t think that anybody who is thinking clearly can get that.”

“We’ve got to put aside this ideological difference or differences thinking that somebody is forcing you to do something,” Fauci continued.

“The public health officials, like myself and my colleagues, are asking you to do something that will ultimately save your life and that of your family, and that of the community,” he continued.

“I don’t know. I really don’t have a good explanation, Jake, about why this is happening. I mean, it’s ideological rigidity, I think. There’s no reason not to get vaccinated,” Fauci further proclaimed.

Watch:

Jake Tapper asks Dr. Anthony Fauci to react to the CPAC Texas crowd cheering that the government has been unable to reach its vaccine goals so far.

Fauci: "It's horrifying... I just don't get that. I mean, and I don't think that anybody who is thinking clearly can get that." pic.twitter.com/4nY7CMor5i

— Justin Baragona (@justinbaragona) July 11, 2021

The government has failed to reach its targets on fully vaccinating 70 percent of the population, with the White House suggesting "herd immunity is kind of an outdated term," and vowing to send "strike forces" to people's homes in an effort to get more vaccinated.

Meanwhile, the Vaers report continues to monitor deaths from side effects of the vaccine, which are at time of writing approaching 10,000 in the U.S. alone, with in excess of 438,000 adverse reactions also reported.

The likes of CNN are declaring that it is "time to start mandating" coronavirus vaccines for all Americans to counter people opting not to take the shots because of hesitancy over potential side effects.

by Steve Watson

Date Created
07/14/2021