

‘We’re Completely Baffled’: Dozens of Fully Jabbed Tourists ‘Suddenly’ Drop Dead in Italy

Description

EU: Dozens of fully jabbed tourists in Italy have died “suddenly and unexpectedly” in the last 24 hours, according to authorities.

Now that beach season is upon us, a new heartbreaking phenomenon is taking place, healthy tourists dropping dead from sudden and unexpected “heart-related emergencies.”

Worldwide, beachgoers are collapsing while simply strolling along the beach or swimming. Many of them suffer cardiac arrest and die.

Blogger Tom Stahl reports, “At the beginning of July, in just 24 hours, at least 11 vacationers dropped dead on Italian beaches.”

Rairfoundation.com reports: As of July 2022, almost 48.7 million people in Italy have received two doses of the controversial Covid “vaccines,” roughly 90.1 percent of the total population over 12 years of age. Additionally, three out of four Italians have also received the booster shot.

While Stahl makes it clear that he does not want to automatically attribute the sudden and unexpected deaths to the experimental gene injections, the amounts of incidents seem worrying.

The death list continues to grow

Meanwhile, the list of “unexplained deaths” and “sudden deaths” continues inexorably. This phenomenon is so common it even has its own acronym: SADS, for Sudden Adult Death Syndrome.

While Italians prepare for their fourth Covid “vaccine” injections, the count of sudden deaths continues to rise inexorably – 11 under 60 years old in the last hours. The youngest victim was 22 years old; another was a 52-year-old doctor. All the deaths were “sudden and unexpected”:

Elected Italian officials, police, and medical workers should be demanding investigations into these deaths. Are the number of people dying not “significant” enough for them. Authorities’ inaction is a slap in the face to the victims’ families.
