

WHO is planning to keep the pandemic going for 10 years, pushing new diseases if necessary

Description

The globalists in the World Health Organization (WHO) are preparing to unleash the next infectious disease to keep the world under control until at least 2030.

This is according to Marion Koopmans, a Dutch virologist who works with the WHO. She admitted during an interview that the organization has a 10-year plan, supposedly to deal with the current Wuhan coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic and an expected second pandemic. (Related: WHO attempts to take control of future plandemics in a “totalitarian power grab” move.)

“This has been in the WHO’s 10-year plan for some time,” said Koopmans. “That plan says that there will be a major infectious disease crisis.”

“Why does the WHO have a 10-year plan announcing 10 years of pandemics? How can they know?” asked David Sorensen in a video detailing evidence that the WHO is planning to keep the pandemic going until 2030.

For context, Koopmans is a former member of the WHO’s first team to go to China to investigate the origins of the COVID-19 pandemic. She was removed from the group following reports revealing her extensive ties to the Chinese Communist Party.

Independent news site the National Pulse exposed Koopmans’ role on a scientific advisory board for the Centers for Disease Control of Guangdong, China.

“She has advised on the building of the laboratory capacity for emerging infectious disease detection in this region, and has ongoing research collaborations trying to unravel emergence and spread of viruses through the animal production chain in this region,” read a summary of her work with the Chinese-run body.

Bill Gates heavily involved in planning the next pandemic

Bill Gates, who has accumulated an additional $50 billion in wealth simply by distributing vaccines, is part of the effort preparing the world to accept that the next pandemic is on its way.

During an interview with liberal comedian Stephen Colbert, Gates admitted that there will be a “pandemic two” once the world is no longer willing to go along with the restrictions put in place for the COVID-19 pandemic, which he calls “pandemic one.”

“Most of the work we’re going to do to be ready for pandemic two – I call this pandemic one – most of the work we’ll do to be ready for that are also the things we need to do to minimize the threat of bioterrorism,” said Gates.

In a separate interview, Gates and his ex-wife Melinda even admitted that the next pandemic will keep people’s attention focused on the spreading disease.

“We’ll have to prepare for the next one. That will get attention this time,” he said. Both he and Melinda were grinning and chuckling the whole time they were announcing the coming of the second pandemic.

Gates has been preparing for the pandemic as early as 2018, when he said a global pandemic is on its way and that it could wipe out as many as 30 million people.

“Bill Gates is essentially the owner of the WHO,” commented Sorensen. He added that thousands of physicians and scientists worldwide agree that the WHO- and Gates-engineered pandemic was planned with the purpose of increasing the globalists’ control over the world and reducing the world population.
