

YouTube CEO Susan Wojcicki Resigns Day After House GOP Issues Subpoenas to Big Tech CEOs

Description

The day after the House GOP issued subpoenas for Big Tech CEOs at Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, Meta, and Microsoft, the CEO of YouTube, Susan Wojcicki, has suddenly stepped down. While YouTube is a subsidiary of Alphabet, Wojcicki was not listed on the list of subpoenaed CEOs.

?HUGE BREAKING NEWS: @Jim\_Jordan subpoenas Big Tech CEOs.
pic.twitter.com/WuOWccu2ZC

— House Judiciary GOP (@JudiciaryGOP) February 15, 2023

Wojcicki said she is stepping down to focus on her “family, health and personal projects.”

Dear Creators,

Earlier today I sent an email to employees announcing that I'd be stepping into a new chapter focused on my family, health and personal projects I'm passionate about.

It has been the honor of my career to have a front row seat to the incredible growth of YouTube. Perseverance, creativity, and inspiration were a daily source of motivation for me and the community you all created. It was a constant highlight of my job to sit in on your feedback. Sometimes what you said was tough and candid, but it was always for the better. Today, the YouTube community is incredibly strong. You're building something special.

You will continue to have someone committed to building and advocating for you. Our Chief Product Officer, Neal Mohan, will take over the leadership role. He is a proven leader who needs today, tomorrow and in the future better than anyone. I plan to stay on YouTube and will serve as an advisor to Google and Alphabet. I remain just as convinced that the best days are ahead of it. From Shorts, to podcasting, streaming to subscriptions, our incredible team of employees, you will all be in good hands.

Finally, thank you for everything over the years. Thank you for welcoming me and letting me be a part of the incredible stories you're sharing with the world.

With admiration,

Susan

YouTube's longtime Chief Product Officer Neal Mohan will be taking over the position.

The YouTube platform is notorious for its tyrannical suppression of whatever it deems "misinformation," especially regarding COVID-19 and the “vaccines.” The platform has been ridiculed consistently for disproportionate censorship of conservative creators.

Big Tech Social Media has been under tremendous scrutiny since the acquisition of Twitter by Elon Musk and the revelations of immense government collusion evidenced in the TwitterFiles releases. With the foundation laid by the Twitter release, Congress should have a template on how to determine the extent of government collusion and censorship on other platforms in violation of the 1st Amendment.

by Brian Lupo

Category

1. Freedom-Free speech-Resistance & H-rights
2. Main
3. Media-Soc. media-Internet

Date Created

02/19/2023