

Zelensky's speech at Munich conference: key points

Description

UKRAINE: Ukraine wants peace. Europe wants peace. The world says it doesn't want to fight, but Russia doesn't want to attack

- Ukraine says it wants peace, Russia says it does not want to invade. Someone is lying
- The UN, which is supposed to protect peace and world security, cannot protect itself. The Crimean platform, which sought to de-occupy Crimea peacefully, is ignored by the UN itself
- We will defend our land, with or without the support of partners.
- To help Ukraine, we do not need the dates of the alleged invasion – we will defend our country on February 16, March 1, and other days. Other dates are much more important to us, and everyone here is well aware of what
- Ukraine consistently implements the Normandy and Minsk agreements. Their foundation is the impeccable recognition of the territorial integrity and independence of our country.
