

Watch: Rand Paul Demands Exclusion Of Wuhan Lab Funders From Investigations

Description

USA: Senator Rand Paul urged Wednesday that those involved in funding the Wuhan Institute of Virology's coronavirus 'gain of function' research cannot be allowed to be a part of investigations again.

Appearing on Fox News, Paul said “Here’s the problem. The WHO investigated this the first time, we suggested three people to send to China. They rejected all three and they accepted a guy named Peter Daszak who was the one that funded the lab.”

The Senator continued “So you can’t have the people—like Anthony Fauci or Peter Daszak—who are part of the funding mechanism to send these funds to Wuhan lab. You can’t have them investigating themselves.”

“They have a definite conflict of interest because if this pandemic started in a lab that the U.S. was funding, the people advocating for the funding obviously will have culpability—at least moral culpability,”

Paul asserted.

Referring to the World Health organisation's 3 hour visit to the Wuhan lab in February, Paul stated "The WHO did a terrible job the first time. There needs to be an investigation but I've been advocating for a congressional investigation."

Watch:

Paul was one of five GOP Senators to put his name to a letter made public this week demanding the unreacted release of "all records" from Fauci, his deputy Hugh Auchincloss, NIH Director Francis Collins and several other officials "referring or relating to the Wuhan Institute of Virology, COVID-19, coronavirus, EcoHealth Alliance, or Dr. Baric's 2015 coronavirus study."

The Senators noted that "release of approximately 4,000 pages of NIH email communications and other documents from early 2020 has raised serious questions about NIH's handling of COVID-19."

"These documents, though heavily redacted, have shed new light on NIH's awareness of the virus' origins in the early stages of the COVID19 pandemic," the senators noted in the letter to HHS Secretary Xavier Becerra and NIH Director Collins.

The letter continues, "It is unclear the extent to which NIH officials, including Dr. Fauci, considered the possibility that the virus originated in a laboratory and what, if any, actions they took to seriously investigate this possibility."

The letter adds that "It is also unclear why NIAID officials eventually decided to downplay the likelihood that the virus originated in a laboratory and, instead, promote that it originated naturally."
